2. Cornwall Electric

A thirty-five page report was presented to Council by Dr. Jan Carr regarding the Cornwall Electric Rate Increase for July, 2003. The executive summary of this Report is as follows:

“Background

On May 1, 2003, Cornwall Electric announced a rate increase of some 20% to become effective July 1, 2003. Under the terms of Cornwall Electric's Franchise Agreement, the City has the right to review certain aspects of the proposed rates. This Report fills two roles:

- a review of the proposed rates according to the terms of the Franchise Agreement; and
- a review and commentary on Cornwall Electric's rates in comparison with other Ontario distribution utilities to assist the City in assessing its electricity supply arrangements in the Ontario context.

Compliance with Franchise Agreement

Cornwall Electric is in general compliance with the requirements of the Franchise Agreement and correcting the few non-compliant items would have an imperceptible effect on rates. It was recommended by Dr. Carr that the City consider Cornwall Electric to be fully in compliance with the Franchise Agreement.

Wholesale Electricity Supply

85% of a typical customer's electricity bill is the cost of electricity bought wholesale by CE and passed through to retail customers at cost. About 1/3 of the required wholesale supply is still provided under a contract with Hydro-Quebec (Contract MEHQ-1) which was negotiated while the utility was owned by the City and this component has an inflationary increase in price. However, the remaining 2/3 of the said requirements are to be obtained under another contract, also with Hydro-Quebec (Contract MEHQ-3) which has increased by 54% over last year's prices. It is this massive increase in price imposed by Hydro-Quebec that is responsible for virtually the entire 20% increase in retail rates.

Of specific interest to the City, it appears that the outcome would have been no more favourable had CE remained under City ownership since the difficulties in controlling the cost of wholesale electricity supply relate to external factors over which the utility's owner does not have direct control.

It should be noted that at the time of writing (June 18, 2003) pricing if the MEHQ-3 contract has not been finalized and this report is based on anticipated pricing. Cornwall Electric has assured the City that any change in final pricing will be reflected in full as a revision to retail rates.

Our review of Cornwall Electric's efforts to find an alternative source of supply to MEHQ-3 indicates that the utility has generally been prudent in arranging its wholesale electricity purchases. The difficulty faced by Cornwall electric is that the physical transmission arrangements in the vicinity of Cornwall and the regulatory provisions related to their use made Quebec the only feasible source of supply. Since Hydro-Quebec has a virtual monopoly of supply in Quebec and is owned by the provincial government along with the company that owns the Cedar Rapids transmission line, Cornwall Electric is in a very weak bargaining position with respect to its wholesale electricity supply.

While this situation is not under Cornwall Electric's control, it appears that Cornwall Electric could have been more proactive in attempting to gain wider market access as the rules and regulations were developed to implement electricity restructuring in Ontario and New York.

Two potential changes, which could be implemented alone or together, would be beneficial in relieving future pressure on Cornwall Electric's wholesale supply costs:

- construct a permanent physical connection from the Ontario transmission system to Cornwall Electric; and
- arrange for the Ontario Energy Board to license the Cedar Rapids transmission line and subject it to the same rules and regulations as all other transmission facilities in Ontario.

Each of these and both together would provide more options for Cornwall Electric's wholesale supply and would therefore reduce Hydro-Quebec's ability to control prices. These changes will require Ontario government backing which we anticipate would most likely be gained through a joint effort of the City and Cornwall Electric.

Total Allowable Revenue

We have checked the reasonableness of the assumptions made by Cornwall Electric in forecasting the revenue that should be collected through rates for the Rate Year beginning July 1, 2003. We also checked the accuracy of the calculation of Allowable Revenue based on the provisions of the Franchise Agreement, the data provided by Cornwall Electric (e.g. wholesale electricity costs, customer count etc.) and forecast assumptions. The distribution component which funds Cornwall Electric's operation and profit is determined by applying an inflation factor to a base figure, both of which are prescribed in the Franchise Agreement. The electricity component is a direct pass-through of estimated wholesale supply costs. The calculation includes arrangements to true-up previous years' cost estimates to actual costs.

As previously mentioned, we found that Cornwall Electric's figures are materially correct.

We understand that Cornwall Electric proposes to implement the rate increase by applying a 1.84¢/kWh increase to the energy rates across all customer categories. While such an approach would not be questioned for an increase of 5-10%, there is higher probability that a 20% increase implemented in this fashion might affect cross subsidies between customer classes and therefore that Cornwall Electric might have analysed the allocation of costs among customer classes.

Comparison of Rates

Comparing Cornwall Electric's rates to those of other Ontario utilities is complicated by the fact that several of the comparator utilities prescribed in the Franchise Agreement have disappeared due to municipal amalgamations. Another complicating factor is that the provincial government has frozen distribution and electricity rates for Ontario utilities at a time when the utilities were in transition toward commercial operation (i.e. paying corporate taxes and earning a return on investment for their owners).

However our analysis shows that Cornwall Electric's proposed new rates are around 25% higher than those of comparable Ontario utilities. A further breakdown of this for a typical residential consumer (1000 kWh/month) shows that distribution costs are 6% lower than the Ontario benchmark (typical Cornwall $20.52, typical Ontario $21.82) but the pass-through costs related to wholesale electricity supply are 29% higher (typical Cornwall $89.89, typical Ontario $69.72).

We estimate that the present rate freeze in all Ontario utilities except Cornwall Electric involves an implicit monthly subsidy of around $17.00 for a typical customer and note that this is close to the difference between typical Cornwall and typical benchmark Ontario customer bills (Cornwall $110.42, Ontario $91.54)."
